

Open letter to CPSO head Nancy Whitmore to stop COVID misinformation

College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario (CPSO) had a meeting with the founder of CCDH on misinformation. But he has been ineffective in stopping it. So I invited the CPSO to a open dialog.

STEVE KIRSCH
MAR 14, 2023

♡ 544

💬 497

📤 Share

Nancy Whitmore, CEO of College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario (CPSO)

Executive summary

© 2023 Steve Kirsch · Privacy · Terms · Collection notice
Substack is the home for great writing

Introduction

Nancy Whitmore, CEO of CPSO, recently sent this email to all their doctors.

Here's the key part:

We were also extremely fortunate to have Mr. Imran Ahmed, Founder of the Center for Countering Digital Hate, give a powerful and thought-provoking talk about health disinformation and digital hate that continues to proliferate online. Mr. Ahmed shared stories and examples of how the lack of regulation and negligence in the “Big Tech” industry, which connects over 4.5 billion people around the world, is “putting us on a terrifying trajectory of chaos.” I strongly encourage you to read the eDialogue cover story and learn how you can help counter health misinformation. We are also going to be hosting Mr. Ahmed in our next “In Dialogue” podcast episode, so stay tuned for more.

They also posted an article about the meeting which you can read here.

The solution

The way disagreements between people are resolved is through dialog between the parties.

Listening to people like Imran Ahmed is not the way to solve the problem. I've reached out to Imran in the past suggesting we meet to resolve our differences. Not only did he ignore my outreach, but he also did this:

Blocking scientists is not the way to resolve the issues

Clearly, he thinks blocking us is the best way to resolve our differences. Where is the science behind that approach? He doesn't provide any references.

The experts say the opposite: scientists with differing views should be heard, not demonized. That op-ed was written by the former Dean of the Harvard Medical School and by UCSF Professor Vinay Prasad, Professor of Epidemiology and Biostatistics, and a practicing Hematologist Oncologist at San Francisco General Hospital and the San Francisco VA Hospital. Vinay is one of the world's top experts on evidence-based medicine.

My offer to Nancy Whitmore

I just sent the following email to Nancy Whitmore:

 Send	To	Nancy Whitmore ([REDACTED]@cpso.on.ca)
	Cc
	Bcc

Subject How you can put a stop to COVID misinformation

Hi Nancy,

My colleagues and I are considered by CCDH to be the world's top misinformation spreaders.

We are all willing to meet with your team to discuss how the CPSO can stop people like us from spreading misinformation.

Did you know that all you need to do is just answer some questions we have and show us in an interactive discussion how we are misinterpreting the data in plain sight of everyone. It's really that simple!

Are you open to doing that?

Please give me a call at [REDACTED] if you would like to move forward.

Thanks!

-steve

Poll

POLL

Do you think the CPSO will meet with us to explain how we got it wrong?

No 97%

Yes 2%

Not sure 2%

3626 VOTES · POLL CLOSED

Summary

COVID Misinformation is a problem. We just disagree on who is spreading it.

However, we have ALWAYS been open to a meeting where the “experts” can show us how we’ve gotten it all wrong.

Unfortunately, all the “experts” are too busy to meet with us even though this is cited as a huge problem.

So the problem persists.

How can the CPSO have the time to meet with Imran who has failed to solve the problem, and not have any time to meet with us so they can solve the problem?

I’m hoping Nancy will explain that to us. I’ll let you know if I hear anything. Don’t hold your breath.

544 likes

497 Comments

Write a comment...

robert Mar 14 · edited Mar 14 📌 Pinned

Rant from a prior doctor. Reasoned people have lost all respect for allopathic medicine the CDC, FDA etc. I do not blame them. I was a physician for 25 years but had to leave. The first 15 years were great. The work was hard, and you would see bad things, but the job was so rewarding. I controlled my schedule and treated my patients as I saw fit. Obamacare started the end of the profession. They forced government treatment protocols and electronic medical records on us. There are over 20 EMRS in the US. Most do not cross communicate. My final year I was spending 30% of my time dealing with the computer and entering useless icd 10 codes. I was told by people with business degrees that I had to see 30-40 patients at day. The art and compassion are gone. Most doctors today are robots. For the record I never recommended masks or covid shots.

♡ LIKE (134) 💬 REPLY ⋮

72 replies

Carol Taylor Apr 12

Untested dangerous Vaccine for depopulation! WEF, Klaus Schwab, Bill Gates.

All in the name of CONTROL the people.

♡ LIKE (1) 💬 REPLY ⋮

1 reply

495 more comments...